

My Times Are in God's Hands

Today, I declare that my times are in God's hands, and He is ordering every step of my journey.

I declare that I will not fear the future, for the One who holds tomorrow is guiding me today.

I declare that every season of my life has a divine purpose, and God is working all things together for my good.

I declare that delays will not discourage me, waiting will not weaken me, and trials will not defeat me.

I declare that the Lord is arranging divine appointments, opening the right doors, and connecting me with the right people.

I declare that what God has promised concerning my life, family, ministry, and destiny shall surely come to pass.

I declare that I will not compare my journey with others, for God's plan for me is unique and perfect.

I declare that the peace of God rules my heart, and the wisdom of God directs my decisions.

I declare that every day of my life is written in God's book, and nothing happens outside His loving care.

I declare that I will rest in God's timing, rejoice in His faithfulness, and remain steadfast in hope.

I declare that this day belongs to the Lord, and I choose to walk in faith, gratitude, and expectation.

Scripture for Today

"My times are in thy hand: deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, and from them that persecute me." —

Psalms 31:15

Declaration

My times are in God's hands. He is my Keeper, my Guide, and my Deliverer. I will trust His timing, submit to His will, and rejoice in His unfailing love. Amen.